Who it helps?

Conductive Education summer programs help children who have been diagnosed with cognitive and/or motor impairment.

Kids who have

- Cerebral Palsy
- Dyspraxia
- Spina Bifida
- individuals with neurological and
mobility impairment

What is Conductive Education?

Conductive Education is an innovative method of learning that merges the elements of education with rehabilitation. Unlike most medical or therapeutic models of treatment, Conductive Education attempts to change the way people see their own abilities.

SWONT Conductive Education

“Brings Out The Best In Me”

The skills that are emphasized during conductive education include:

- Physical functioning
- Play strategies
- Social interaction
- Academic skills
- Self-care strategies

During Conductive Education

Children are taught to see themselves as active participants in their own education; they are encouraged to be problem-solvers and develop a self-reliant personality that fosters:

- Active participation
- Initiative
- Determination
- Motivation
- Independence
- Self-sufficiency
